About the Book

I based off this book as a similar experience I had in my life. There are always things that crush you down in life and you feel like you want to give up already. Thankfully, I have not experienced this before but I know a lot of other people have. The message I'm trying to deliver with this book is that, if you face hatred every day because of your appearance, your weight, etc, just because someone is letting you down, doesn't mean you have to stop and change yourself. You are your best self. You are born this way and changing it won't make yourself feel better. Always remember to be yourself and not pretend to be someone else.

Her name is

HARPER

---

Harper was a shy but discipline girl. She always used art to express her feelings. Her mother could no longer afford living in such a big house. So they had no choice but to move to a smaller town.

After a lot of packing and moving,
they finally settled on an apartment.
